About Uptourn Ha Filler

Uptourn Filler is a range of new generation Italian filler products. They are medical-grade, monophasic fillers created using state-of-the-art technology and advanced manufacturing processes. Thanks to a wide composition of products with innovative formulations and different concentrations of hyaluronic acid, our fully resorbable implants ensure perfect integration with the tissue and natural and long-lasting results.

Uptourn Filler products are manufactured using advanced and modern production technologies, enabling better preservation of the length of the hyaluronic acid chains and high purification of the crosslinking agent residues.

The smooth and exceptionally plastic structure of the products result from the innovative, multistage acid aeration system and the use of only pure and natural hyaluronic acid with very strong and stable chains. The process of formation and crosslinking hyaluronic acid ensure exceptional plasticity and smoothing properties which result in the achievement of natural and long lasting rejuvenating effects.

Research & Development

- Cohesivity: the attractive force acting between the molecules of a substance.
- Viscoelasticity: the ratio between viscosity (the property of resistance to flow in a fluid/semifluid; adjacent layers move parallel to each other with different speeds) and elasticity (the tendency of solid materials to return to their original shape after being deformed).
- Plasticity: the property to undergo permanent deformation under load.

The different and optimum rheology of each single Uptourn filler allows the substance to adapt itself to the receiving anatomic structures while, at the same time, keeping the desired shape for a long lasting aesthetic correction. Uptourn Filler is able to create the desired volume without inducing compression to the surrounding tissues, always providing natural results.

Furthermore, there is absolutely no migration of the implant in the tissue, something that is unfortunately quite common with many other similar products on the market!
